"ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE,

*And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances,
And one man in his time plays many parts . . ."*

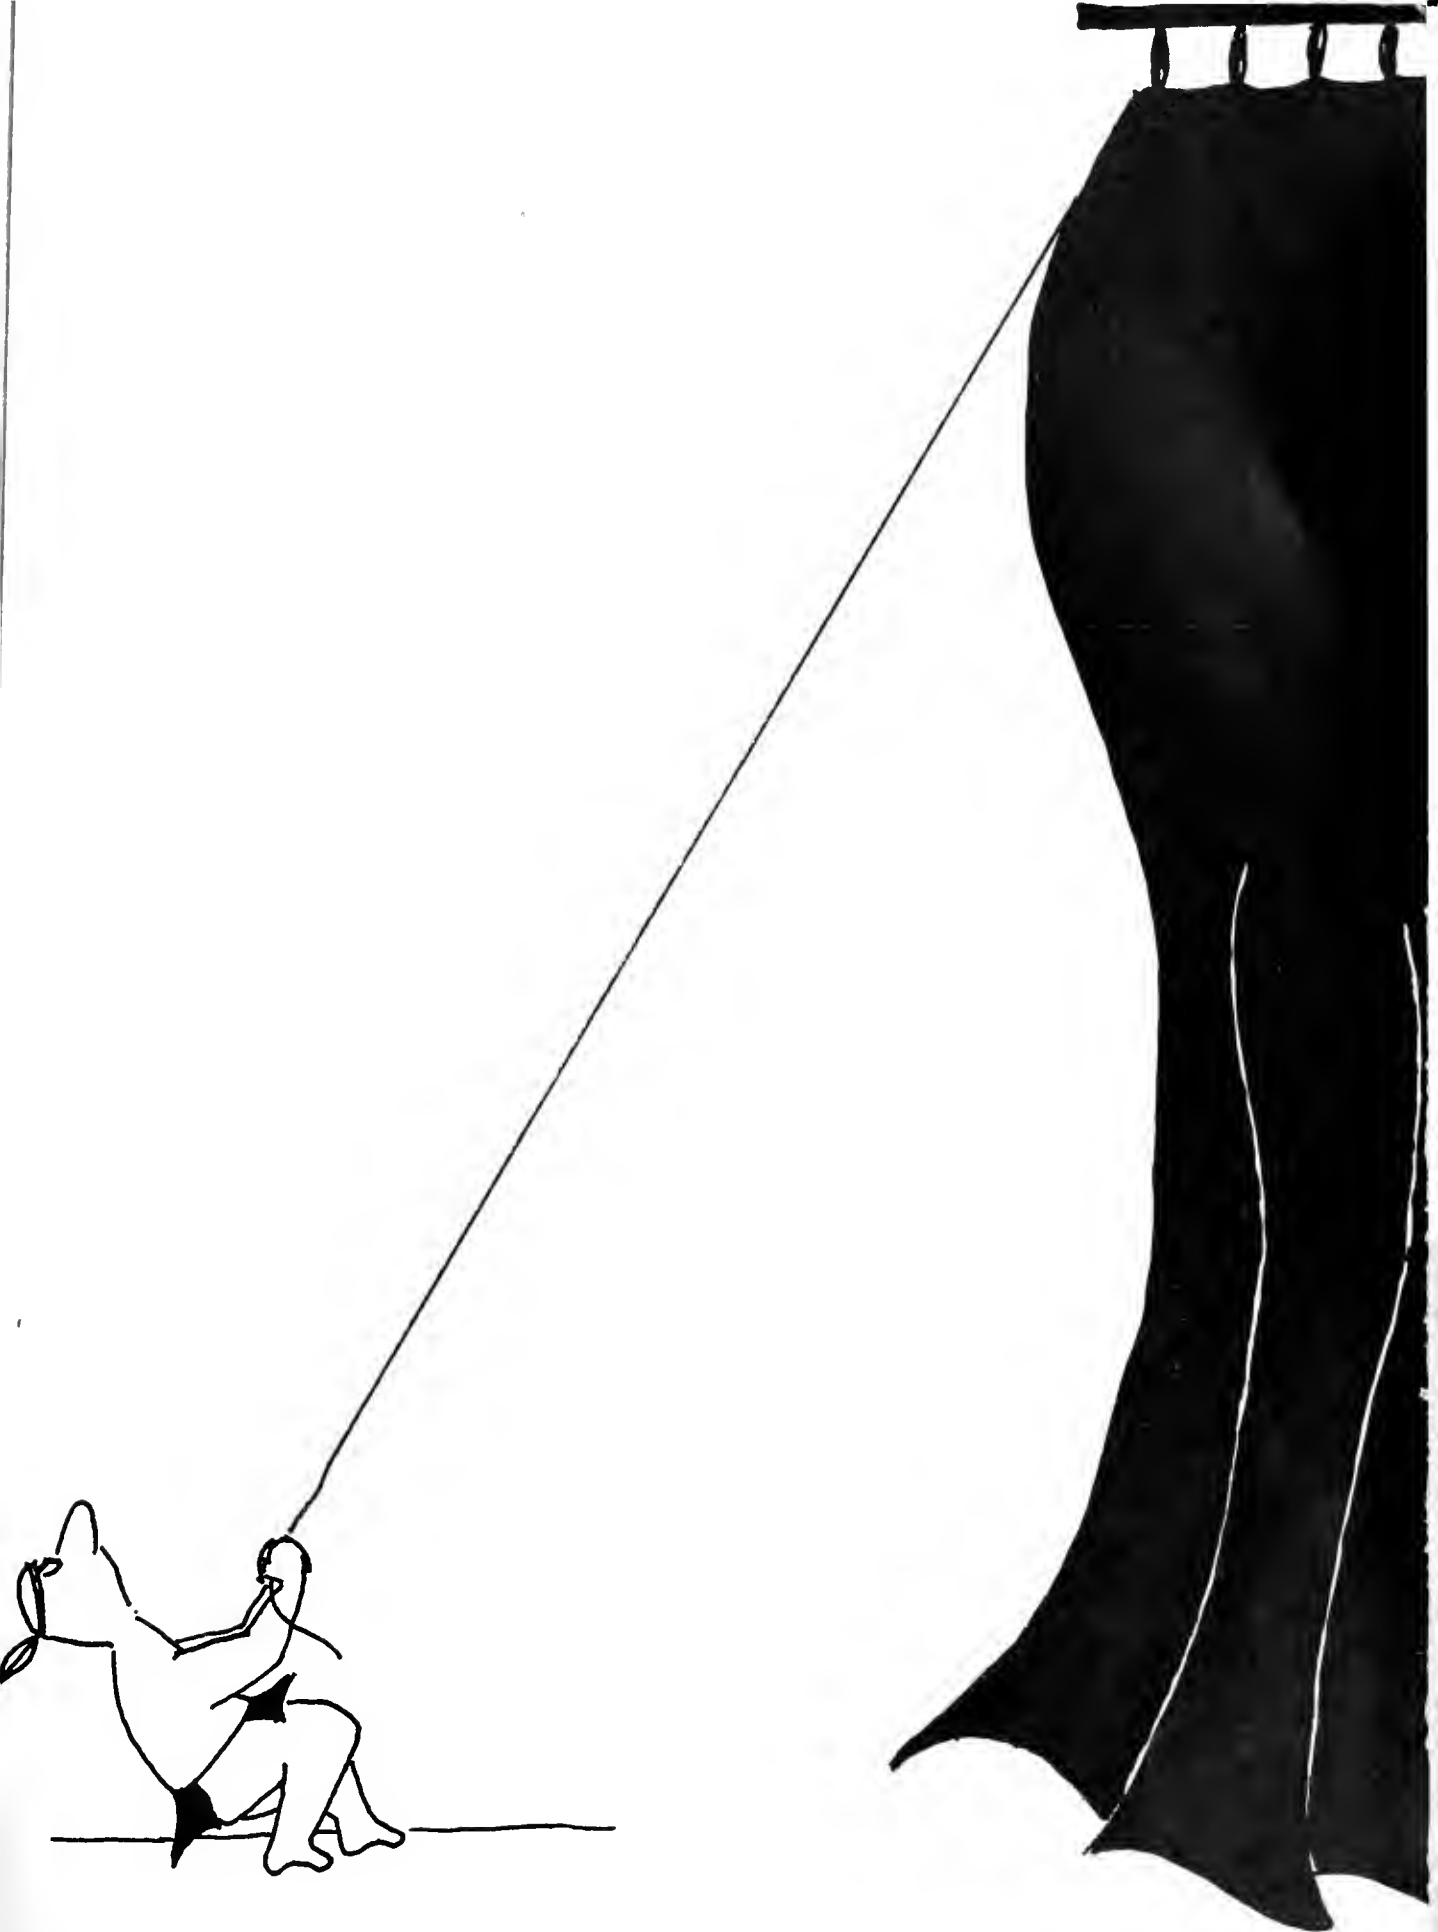

HOW TRUE THIS BECOMES when one attempts to remember the past. This year, as every preceding year, will be recalled as only part of a scene in the huge drama of life.

An old program of the play, "The Pioneer's Arrow" will help you remember the many pleasant highlights of your dramatic introduction to life. Curl up in your easy chair, perhaps in the attic crammed full of other memories, and watch the play unfold as you turn the pages.

The Class of '53

The Junior Class, second in rank only to the Senior Class, again proved its ability to produce leaders in many of the campus activities. The election results brought forth able leaders with Richard Brunner as president; David Rodriguez as vice president; Dorothy Wenger as secretary, and Robert McKernan as treasurer.

We developed our talents by co-sponsoring with the Senior Class the musical show "Let's Go Back", written by Nancy Hall, a graduating senior.

As supporting actors this year, we will step into the lead roll as the Class of '53.

After the cast has been introduced,
our drama begins.

The Play

Act I.—Concentration

Shading, coloring and surface planes concerned us as we learned the mastery of techniques in art. While we dabbled on canvas, we were guided by the influence of some greater artists who had gone before.

Freshman composition was a nightmare; later we read pages and pages of literature and realized that it is possible to express the thoughts of men in words understandable to men.

Then we ventured into several foreign tongues. Todo el mundo sabe—finden die Antworten—cherchez la femme.

From Bach to Stravinsky we listened. From 8:15 to 5:00 we practiced. From the Fine Arts issued forth melodic sounds of music majors at work.

Philosophy awakened us to the basic problems and standards of life. Through the study of the Christian religion, we found a way to approach those problems.

We tried to find out where our dollars go by analyzing economic systems and principles. And as political science courses explained the structure of institutions, we agreed that government functions only through its active citizens.

A study of the past with an eye to the future was our purpose in history classes. Our mistakes appeared in a better light when compared with those of our ancestors.

Psychology told us group behavior is a result of individual reactions to certain stimuli. Beneficial attitudes are what we need to make those reactions harmonious.

Sociology revealed the influences different groups have in shaping society. We saw our own culture with a broader perspective as we traced the developments of other cultures.

The world around us became a thing of wonder as biology acquainted us with all forms of life.

Formulas, test tubes, and theories occupied us in chemistry. And although the labs were long, we had just begun to touch the vast amount of knowledge in the field.

To be engineers, we had to know dimensioning, cube roots, calculus, and were we surprised to learn that Pythagorns had nothing to do with the Pythagorean theorem!

Mathematics gave us a foundation for reasoning and work in the sciences. The laws and facts of our physical world were covered in the study of physics and rounded out our survey of life.

Physical education classes not only exercised our bodies but also gave us that needed relaxation and change from concentration.

Practice is supposed to make perfect, but patience was an additional ingredient needed as we strove for accuracy in typing and shorthand.

We were shown the fundamentals of business transactions and the principles of accounting. After being introduced to real estate, corporations, securities, bank policies and all kinds of risks, we were convinced that as penniless college kids we were much safer than we had realized.

Act II.—Recreation

JOYCE KELCHNER

Classes are over. We leave the books and turn to a lighter side of college life. We don't mind the task of choosing pretty queens and selecting the cast for a Shaw comedy. And who wouldn't enjoy singing a concert or marching in a parade with the band? Muscles ache as we dash around the gym floor—but it feels so-o-o-o good after sitting all day. Some of our activities are related to our studies, but there's a relaxing atmosphere of informal discussions and the added pleasure of refreshments.

A Cappella Choir

Seventeen new voices were added to our Choir this year, making forty-one altogether. With Walter G. Melver directing, we sang before business groups, church organizations, and schools. We accepted the invitation to sing for the Northwestern Jurisdictional of the Women's Society of Christian Service, and at Christmas presented a carol concert here on campus. Our programs included chorals, folk melodies, hymns and Negro spirituals. Touring the eastern part of the state for a series of concerts, we gained experience in fine singing, co-operation, endurance, and the ability to get up in the morning.

The Lycoming Singers

Chosen from within the A Cappella Choir, sixteen of us complemented the work of the larger group. Besides doing some A Cappella singing, we also used piano accompaniment in our performances. Our smaller size made us a more versatile travelling unit, so we entered into a busy schedule of weekly visits to high schools as participants in Lycoming's promotional program.

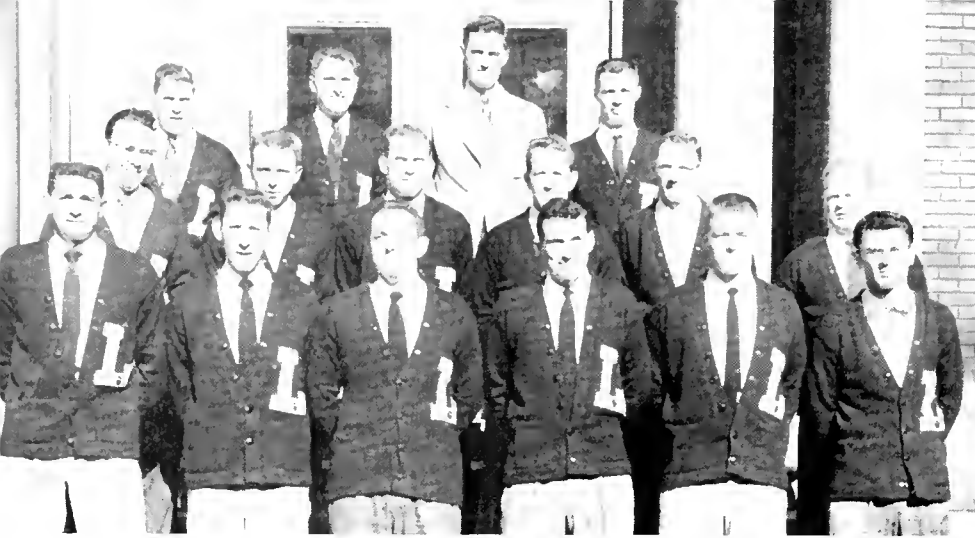

Band

This year there were thirty of us who played at various civic activities and programs. Our little German Band provided music, atmosphere, and stimulation for the crowds at basketball games. And none of us will ever forget the frozen fingers and toes we got during that Mummer's Parade. We were represented this year in the inter-collegiate band by our two officers.

DONALD "MOE" MOSHER

The last meal before the big event! Don't forget your vitamins!

With the familiar cry, "Let's go Lyco," we began the 1951-52 season by scoring a victory over a powerful Juniata quintet in the Williamsport High School gymnasium. Evidence of great possibilities was seen in our team which included former court stars, Vince Leta, Don Mosher, and Tom Brennan.

Throughout the season, our Warriors displayed a determination to play the best ball they knew how. Our first taste of defeat was at the hands of Moravian who enjoyed their hottest night of the year at our expense . . . Playing an exhibition game with Sampson Air Force Base, we saw our former court star, Bill Graff return to the court for Sampson . . . In the Susquehanna game, Wagner, Fortner, and Daggett balanced the high score of Vince Leta . . .

We're happy- anticipating a scalping for the other team

GEORGE "BILL" FORTNER

"... Hear us as we raise our voices in praise to you"

Aggressiveness of both opposing guards was the keynote of our Wilson game with Moe and Leta as high scorers . . . And what member of the team will ever forget that once in a lifetime moment at Geneseo when Jaime Nevins sank a field goal 65 feet away as the buzzer sounded . . . Then, at Yeshiva almost the entire Yeshiva team fouled out before the game ended in our favor . . . At Harpur, a fast break earned the Warriors a lopsided victory as Vince connected with 21 points and Fortner controlled both back boards . . . Smallest member of the Warriors, Meconi, set up plays as Fortner, Leta, and Mosher hit consistently against Wilkes . . . While Mosher and Leta paced our team, Stevenson, of Rio Grande, tied our individual record of 32 points . . . Later, Vince broke all Kings' scoring records with a 33-point spree . . . Near the end of the season we again played Juniata and found Moe pacing the scoring and Fortner still controlling the backboards . . . We ended the season with the traditional game against Elizabethtown in which Moe was high scorer and the opponent's coach had a hard time staying seated toward the end of the game.

MARDELL "MERT" WAGNER

JAIIME "CURLY" NEVINS

"Surely you can spare a little ole' dime for a program."

ROBERT "BOBBY" MECONI

Half-time pause to wet our whistle

"It's anybody's ball, but it better be ours."

Suffering only six losses while gathering sixteen victories, our hard-working Warriors prevented any one team from duplicating a defeat at their expense. Coach Smith's basketballers played their most brilliant game at Sampson Air Base where they lost by only 10 points to a star studded array of talent, paced by All-American Earl Shannon.

At the final game of the season, the only senior varsity man Tom Brennan was awarded the "good sportsmanship" trophy from the varsity club. To Coach Smith and all of his Smithmen—Leta, Mosher, Fortner, Wagner, Nevins, Meconi, Moore, and Brennan, we say well done in '52 as we anticipate a powerful armada to represent our Alma Mater next year.

"Warriors, warriors, hear our call!"

"O.K., boys, this is a tough one!"

INTRAMURALS

Each year at Lycoming, the men's intramural games have been a part of our regular program of athletics. This organization, under the direction of Lee Baer, instructor in physical education, directed us toward sportsmanship and precision. Participation in the various activities was voluntary. At the end of the sport season, awards were presented to the winning teams. The intramural games also afforded our basketball coach, Robert Smith, an opportunity to observe the men in action in order to make additions to the Junior Varsity and Varsity teams.

Sweeping aside one opponent after another, Mert Wagner captured the Intramural Tennis Championship. The cup he was awarded is emblematic of individual achievement in Tennis. Wagner, by sweeping aside Gordon Gillette 6-2 in their semi-final match, met Bill Zwick, another finalist.

After a hectic first set dual, in which Wagner emerged victorious, the second set proved fatal to Zwick, who dropped it to Wagner, 6-3.

In 1951, Lycoming was for the first time without a representing team on the inter-collegiate gridiron. As a result, we expanded the intramural football program and watched vigorous contests between the different campus teams. The intramural season began on September 23 and continued until November 20. The "Dagmars," featuring a star-studded array of muscle talent, maintained a rugged line that refused to budge or open up for the opposition. Their backs combined speed, dexterity, and force in taking advantage of the line's smooth performance. They amassed the overall record of four wins and no defeats, capturing the team trophy for 1951.

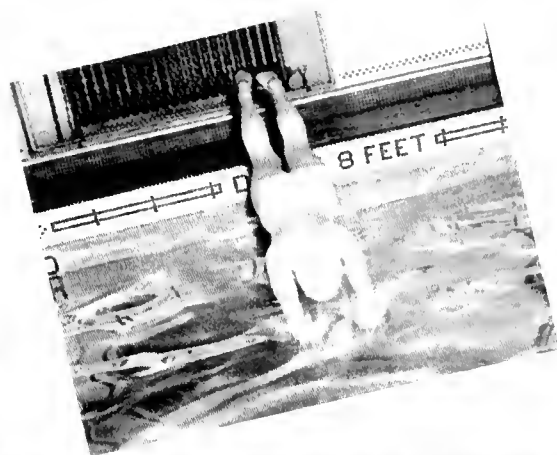

Other teams finished thus: Bradley Hall—two wins, two defeats; A. G. U.—two wins, two defeats; K. D. R.—two wins, two defeats; Z. D. K.—no wins, four defeats.

A shrill whistle, a jump ball and the competition began. "King" basketball had started for Lycoming's intramural teams. Among the participants were Lambda Chi Alpha, Z. D. K., A. G. U., Z. T. B., The Angels, K. D. R., Parsons, and last year's champions, the Draftees. Basketball season began after the Christmas vacation and extended on into April. The teams competed on Monday and Wednesday evenings. Each team, at its scheduled time to play, competed in a double round robin. The two champions of the respective leagues engaged in a contest to decide which would lay claim to the coveted Felix Memorial Trophy.

The Fraternities on campus decided to form their own league independent from the regular intramural league. The trophy for their league was donated by the Fraternities themselves.

Women's intramurals, open to all eligible college women, benefited all of us who participated by developing fair play, poise, and proficiency in sports. With Helen Felix as adviser, we organized teams for field hockey, volley ball, badminton, basketball, bowling, and swimming. We played in tournaments against teams from Penn State, Juniata, and Bucknell. A few of us acted as referees, score-keepers, and time-keepers. The winning basketball teams were those under the captaincy of Virginia Giles, Eleanor Miller, and Marilyn Bockmeyer. At the end of the year we gave awards on the basis of team victories and officiation at the games.

Ah— just to get away from it all! Off-campus capers are fun, too. Goin' shop-pin' today? Let's stop at Gus'— a free pretzel with every dollar purchase. Did you hear about the party out at Rauchtown? What did you think of "Cyrano," or Grable, or Kenton? A stroll in the park with your own campus favorite. An evening chuckling over George's latest jokes. It's all part of the picture. JOHN W. LONG

PRODUCER

To the Members of the Class of 1952, Lycoming College:

I have had considerable pleasure in reading during the last several weeks the copies of what was formerly the Dart, now the ARROW. The first copy was issued by the Class of 1923. Before that time the last number each year of the college publication, The Dickinson Union, which then appeared in magazine form, was considered the yearbook.

I feel there has been steady improvement in the yearbook and taken as a whole the Dart and ARROW form a valuable picture of the last thirty years of this institution.

I would not change the messages which I have written to the various classes even if I had an opportunity to do so.

I do not have anything new at this time but want to repeat as my message for this class the last paragraph of the message which I wrote in 1923.

"You are now to take your places in that loyal body of men and women who have preceded you and are now known as the Alumni. You will soon find your places in the communities where you will be privileged to serve. May the strength which you have found here sustain you, the knowledge you have gained here enlarge your horizon, the friendships you have formed here inspire you, the ideals you have set up before you ennoble your effort, and the faith you have had strengthened here serve as a sure anchor in the voyage of life so that you may find your place and so serve as to bring at the end the approval of your fellow-toilers and the Master's 'well done.' This is the wish of one who desires always to be counted your friend."

Faithfully yours,

Highlights

IN THE SPRING a Junior's fancy lightly turned to thoughts of graduation . . . We upset tradition everywhere we turned - we had the first Junior Prom and instead of a queen reigning over the dance, we, the junior class, were ruled by King Neptune . . . Money for our gift to the school was raised by work on the Senior-Junior musical, "The Good Old Days."

We first realized that our seniority was drawing nigh with the election of Student Government officers for the coming year . . . To climax the year, we glided through May Day and the spring prom, then watched the class of '51 graduate, and bequeath to us the continuing task of establishing traditions at Lycoming.

Seniors impersonate types of students for frosh

Construction was not quite completed when we returned

Three months later we returned to fulfill the duties of our inheritance . . . A few of us were on hand to greet the freshmen during orientation week—what a bustle of activity that was! . . . Monday night, the choir members sponsored an icebreaker; on Tuesday the round of tests began and we took the picture of the freshman class . . . A weiner roast was Tuesday's social . . . Wednesday—more tests, and a special issue of the Lycoming Courier . . . Thursday was freshman initiation into the maze of registration with parties that night in the various dormitories.

By Friday the rest of the upperclassmen began pouring in for registration while the Frosh were defeated in a softball game by the Sophs: 8-7. That night, the Frosh displayed their talent in the '55 Review in the Clarke Building.

Saturday while the last of the upperclassmen straggled in, the Frosh became acquainted with Williamsport (on a bus trip) and finished the week with a square dance in the gym Saturday night.

The Matriculation services on Sunday morning marked the official opening of the college year and our last year on the reservation.

The first day of classes brought also the first day of the much-discussed freshman hazing. As dignified seniors, we had nothing to do but sit and watch the sophs give orders to the lowliest class . . . 13 pigtails, and odd clothing (absolutely no makeup) was the fashion for the gals . . . the kind-hearted sophs made a rule of no dating or even talking to the fellows, purely to protect this unadorned pulchritude from the idea that the men didn't appreciate their newest fashion!

The entire freshman class was compelled to play leap frog, after which the co-eds washed the bell with tooth brushes, and the frosh men had a tug of war with their tormentors.

Thursday of that week was penalty day for the co-eds; it was not strange to see them walking backwards, or making speeches at the most improbable time and place.

This week also officially introduced the new students to chapel . . . Dr. John W. Long presented the objectives of Lycoming College.

They sure are strong

"Gee, but it's dirty!"

While radios everywhere blared forth the world series games, the hot water boiler blew out. But we broke the ice in the bucket, took our showers, and sloshed through the rain to continue a busy social schedule. From freshman hazing we progressed to fraternity rushing and two weeks of open houses.

Freshman orientation, hazing, and fraternity rushing were past and then we settled down to study — for awhile!

Draping crepes for the Homecoming Dance

The month of October was a busy one for everybody . . . clubs were forming . . . SGA announced the freshman officers for the first semester . . . Men's dorm council was elected . . . Women's dorm had a little trouble electing their officers . . . upperclassmen elected officers . . . The Allocations committee met, and then came the question, "How do we get $5,000 out of $3,100 for the publications?"

From Thursday, October 18, until late Saturday night, we had absolutely no time to ourselves. In chapel, Thursday, we helped Dr. Long celebrate his 30th year as president of the college. Dr. Long talked about the school's latest business investment and announced the addition of a brewing course to our curriculum, with Dr. Witmeyer as brewmaster. Friday afternoon we were working fast and furiously on the decorations for Saturday night's dance in the gym. Friday night our work was halted for the President's Reception.

Saturday morning the campus overflowed with visitors, caps and gowns, and even students. The senior class appeared as an honor guard for the visiting dignitaries, who included librarians from other schools, for the dedication of The John W. Long Library. Bishop Charles W. Flint dedicated the library, the Hon. Robert F. Rich was master of ceremonies, and Dr. Amos B. Horlacher gave the main address of the morning.

After the alumni luncheon, served in the dining hall, Saturday afternoon was spent at the unveiling services when the portrait of Dr. Long, in his namesake library, made its first appearance.

The election of the Homecoming queen is one custom that we tradition-bound seniors will never forget. The annual parade through town exhibiting our beauties to the townspeople was a big event for the student body on Saturday afternoon. Instead of the entire band this year we had only three instrumentalists, but we made noise anyway.

Eight young ladies were candidates from the fraternities and clubs. The judges were the five fraternity advisers . . . Fate, however, was kind to us oldsters, and the homecoming queen crowned at the dance that night was a senior, Miss Lambda Chi Alpha, Cay Wardner.

Publications office moved from this 'ol' hole in the wall

Keep in step!

What's the holdup here?

Lambda Chi Alpha is born

"Trick or Treat"

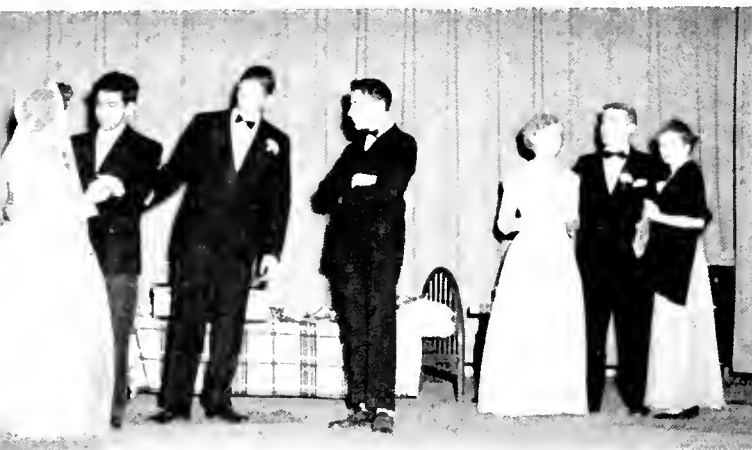

Events of the weekend were only the beginning of social activity . . . the Courier and Arrow staffs settled themselves to work in their new office on the fourth floor . . . about three times as large as the old hole in the wall . . . We began to have our pictures taken for the yearbook -my, didn't we think we were important . . . The dramatic club held tryouts for parts in one-act plays for their Frosh-Soph play contest. Then on Sunday, the choir left on its first three-day tour of the year . . . Wednesday was Halloween which was not neglected by some of the resident co-eds . . . Thursday classes were almost deserted -first day of hunting season . . . Contract for yearbook was signed with Grit Publishing Company . . . Friday, November 2, we saw our first flurries of snow and the following morning found the ground covered with two inches of the stuff . . . That was the weekend that Lambda Phi Delta lost their name and their money; they were initiated into the national fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, with the assistance of the Pennsylvania State College Chapter.

Armistice Day celebrated

Prince Albert shaves, watched by Queen Victoria the morning after they were married (Halbrooks)

The basketball team was faithfully practicing and scrimmaging in preparation for the coming season What a delicious meal of stuffed pork chops it was the day we had the Rotary for lunch! That night the band marched in a parade in commemoration of Armistice Day The following day was the Frosh-Soph Drama Duel: the Frosh presented "A Wedding," and the Sophs, "Dear Departed." The Frosh were named the winners in the next chapel period More Drama! Thursday, we were privileged to attend the delightful program of Hal and Ruby Holbrook in their impersonations of great people Whether we had it or not, we used up plenty of energy Saturday at a square dance in the gym The following week, we almost had an extended vacation because of no heat in the buildings. Unfortunately this situation was remedied.

The case of the missing co-eds

Fight, Team, Fight!

We won 61-40!

After Thanksgiving vacation, at a class meeting on Tuesday, we seniors decided to wear hoods at commencement. Resident men had a bachelor luncheon the following day while resident women were guests of the non-residents at a luncheon in Rich Hall . . . Thursday we had our first pep rally in chapel, and on Saturday night everybody turned out to the high school gym to watch our first basketball game against Juniata . . . George Fortner scored our first basket of the season.

Tuesday noon the Warriors left for a two-game bill on the road . . . Thursday and Friday of that week, the Lycoming College Players presented Shaw's "Pygmalion"—huge success . . . Sunday the Civic Choir presented the "Messiah" five of the eight soloists were students or alumni of Lycoming.

"I'm so glad you could come, Miss Doolittle!"

Warriors leave Resurrection

No libitzing, please!

"Tea, Sir?"

Christmas festivities really began about the middle of that week . . . Thursday the non-resident women had a Christmas party in Rich Hall Day-room . . . the Christmas formal was scheduled for the next day, and in spite of six inches of snow and an hour-late orchestra, we carried on with the dance.

Trees in Rich Hall were decorated Saturday. Also the Lambda Chi's had a buffet dinner for pledges, members and their dates before the basketball game, and a big Christmas party for everyone after the game . . . Sunday was the annual Christmas Tea, in Rich Hall . . . Monday, Santa visited resident women at their Christmas party, and Wednesday amid snow, ice, and sleet we had our annual formal Christmas dinner . . . Thursday the choir presented a full concert in chapel . . . Friday noon was the last class for 1951.

Back from vacation, we began cramming for exams . . . meeting deadlines for the ARROW, the Courier . . . club meetings, planning for next semester . . . basketball games . . . and still exams stared us in the face. Why, oh why didn't we study during the semester?

What a dinner at the formal Christmas banquet!

No cheating in this test!

Santa's little helper

"Today's troubles do not stem from Adam, Eve, and a green apple, but from a green pair."

There must be an easier way to register!

And another two points were chalked up for Lycoming

A few days rest to recuperate from that horrid ordeal which we came through not too much the worse for wear, and so we began our last semester as undergraduates. For the eighth and last time at registration we stood in line to fill out "train tickets" . . . New classes began . . . Good resolutions to study were kept for a week . . . and then, we yielded to those tempting extra-curricular activities.

Tryouts for Nancy's musical were held and rehearsals began . . . The "Squaws" traveled to Penn State for a sports playday where Sis Miller played against the badminton champion of India . . . The following Thursday was the Annual Greater Lycoming Banquet and Dance . . . Dr. John Furbay was the speaker . . . A busy weekend followed the banquet and dance --Friday was a basketball game, and Saturday the "Squaws" played host to several other schools for a sports playday.

"... so dance me loose."

"Well anyhow, it's UNDERHANDED!"

*"Join the gang and greet the world with a bang.
It's fun 'cause it's Collegiate."*

As the semester slipped by, activity increased. March blew in with a snow storm and a bustle of excitement . . . Basketball season closed victoriously against Elizabethtown with a total of 16 wins and 6 losses to our credit. At this game Tom Brennan was awarded the "good sportsmanship" trophy by the Varsity Club . . . Elections for the new "Chieftain Award" and members of the May Court added to the general uproar . . . The student musical, "Let's Go Back," composed and directed by Nancy Hall, was held over an extra night because of public demand . . . Tryouts were held for "Family Portrait," the spring production of the dramatic club . . . Religion-In-Life Week ended the activity of March.

"I chase 'em, embrace 'em, I never two face 'em."

Under the direction of Caldwell Mathias, the choir presented "The Crucifixion" just before Easter Vacation . . . After Easter, such a round of activity we had . . . Our campus was host to the State MSM Conference . . . The following week, we enjoyed "Family Portrait" and the Interfraternity Council Dance, and finally May Day arrived.

A few of the large cast for "Family Portrait."

Commencement

A year ago it really seemed as if our days of graduation would never arrive, but our commencement has actually come about. Only a few events prior to that time are left to be recorded . . . after May Day and the spring prom, the last dance we attended as undergraduates, came the inevitable . . . exams . . . Then Senior week, including faculty-senior softball game . . . Class Day on Saturday, when our campus was again filled with weekend visitors . . . final choir concert and banquet that night . . . Sunday morning, Baccalaureate Service, commencement, and then, goodbye.

THE EDITOR SAYS . . .

Words can not express the deep appreciation felt by your editor for a hard working staff. Much time was spent in the initial planning; many hours were devoted to the actual creation of the 1952 Arrow. To create something new and different and to help you relive the highlights of this year were the aims of the staff. Therefore, I would like to extend heartfelt thanks for a job well done to:

NANCY HALL for taking complete charge of the literary content;

JOE WOOL for handling all our financial problems;

CAY WARDNER for creating a new senior section;

JEAN DAVIES for contributing the theme and organizing the highlights section;

FRED LEGGE for his work on the advertising;

ANNE PALMER for typing all the copy;

GIL LOVE and BOB INNES for taking many of the pictures;

JOE CLARK for being leg man for the photographers.

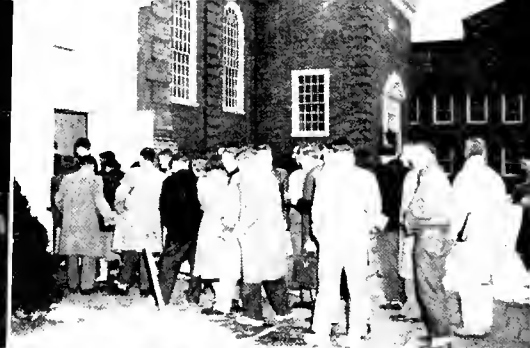

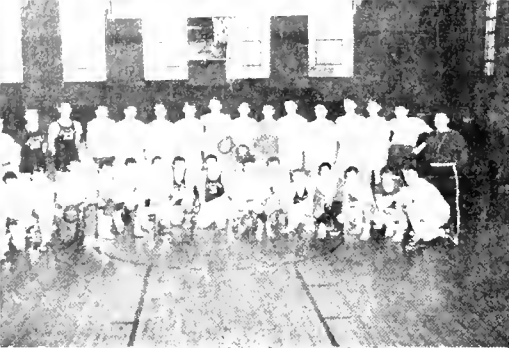

Also thanks to: Armand Van Baelen for his helpful suggestions in special photographic effects; Hoyer's Photographic Store; Mr. James E. Frailey, representative for the Grit Publishing Company.

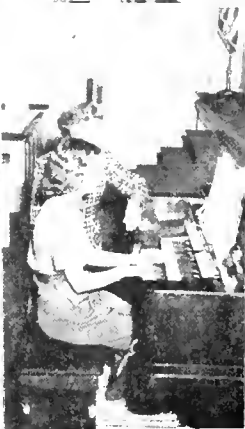

Finally, thanks to Mrs. Eloise B. Mallinson for her advisory assistance.

Without these people and the many others who worked with them the Arrow would never have hit its mark.

AS THIS PLAY ENDS, another one begins. The strains of the commencement processional have faded, the diploma is safely tucked away and the curtain is about to rise on the drama of adjusting oneself to the responsibilities of society.

As actors on the stage of life, it is up to you to draw the spotlight on yourselves.

Best of luck in the succeeding years!
